UB Humanities Institute announces a call for Research Workshop applications for 2008-09.

HI Research Workshop funding is designed to support existing interdisciplinary reading groups in the humanities and to encourage the formation of new groups. Research Workshops may include any number of faculty and/or graduate students, focusing on any topic, but they must be interdisciplinary. Workshops based exclusively in a single academic unit will not be funded. Funding levels vary, but the maximum award is $2,500 per year. In the interest of long-term planning, established groups may apply for more than one year’s funding.

- Please give the name and describe the principal focus of the Research Workshop.
- Please indicate how long the Research Workshop has been in existence or whether it is a new group.
- Please provide a concise summary of the Research Workshop’s productivity and results to date.
- Please indicate how often the Research Workshop meets and what format its meetings typically take.
- Please list the Research Workshop’s membership by name, department, and email address (including both faculty and graduate students).
- Please describe the Research Workshop’s plans for 2008-09 and provide an itemized draft budget.
- Please indicate other funding sources (committed or pending) for the Research Workshop.
- Please indicate the Research Workshop’s principal coordinator for 2008-09.

Submit the original application, together with 8 copies, to Michele Bewley, 810 Clemens Hall. The deadline for applications is 5pm Friday, April 18, 2008. Awards will be announced by May 1.
