1. Define the following terms:

   (a) myth of corruption
   (b) Danelaw
   (c) onomatopoeia

2. We talked about at least six features necessary to distinguish language from other communication systems. Choose three features. Define and explain how each contributes to our definition of language and why they are essential.

3. What is the difference between diachronic and synchronic change? Create an example of how the word university could change both ways.

4. What would the result of haplology be on the word ‘temporary’?

5. A friend has asked if she should use ‘who’ or ‘whom’ in a sentence. What would be the difference between a descriptive and a prescriptive answer?

6. Name the three features we use to distinguish consonants in the IPA. Be sure to explain what each feature refers to or how to determine it.